

CALLING ALL TRURO COOKS

The Truro Historical Society is preparing to publish a cookbook of favorite recipes from the best cooks in the world...TRURO COOKS. This cookbook will be a collection of your time honored recipes, photographs, and tales of Truro.

And if you have your grandmother's favorite recipes, we would love to include those, too.

Don't miss this opportunity to be part of Truro's history.

We're compiling our collection now, so
SEND YOUR FAVORITE RECIPES

along with your name, Truro address, phone number, and email address to

And if you're feeling really creative,
HELP US NAME OUR COOKBOOK.

Send us your suggestions for a great title.

The lucky winner will receive a free cookbook and a one year membership in the Truro Historical Society

THS UPDATE

The Highland House Museum is closed for the season, but Director BJ Dyche and Curator Mark Dooley are still hard at work planning next season's events and exhibits and will be available to assist you with Museum or Archive matters. They can be reached at the Cobb Archive by calling 508-349-0020 Monday through Friday or by email at director@trurohistorical.org or curator@trurohistorical.org.

The Cobb Memorial Archive will continue to be open to the public through the winter months on Tuesday and Thursday, 9:30AM - 12:30PM and by special appointment.

The Cobb Archive houses the paper artifacts of Truro's past. It's the perfect place to research your property, old photographs, or general information on the history of Truro. Or if you have some of Truro's history on paper and would like to donate your antique treasures to our collection, The Truro Historical Society would welcome the opportunity to preserve your contribution for future generations.

The Truro Historical Society would like to thank our members and patrons for your support through funding. Without your generous gifts, we would not be able to operate the Museum or the Archive. We would also like to acknowledge all those who donated artifacts in the past year. These bits of Truro's history are currently housed safely and securely in the Highland House Museum or at the Cobb Archive. A full list of donors and their gifts will be published in the next Truro Historical Society newsletter. And last but not least, we would like to thank all the volunteers for the many hours of hard work contributed to the Museum and the Archive. We are in the process of organizing volunteer group projects to assist in the cataloging of museum artifacts, online typing of recipes for our cookbook, preparing our winter mail-outs, organizing next season's events, and various other programs. If you would like to volunteer a few hours each week, contact us at director@trurohistorical.org. There's no better way to learn about the Truro Historical Society than to get personally involved. We need you.
